

Participants Code of Conduct (Expectations)

1. All participants will be treated with respect, without prejudice or favour; in turn they should similarly respect everybody who is on the site.
2. Participants should be briefed, primarily by accompanying staff, and before the activity commences by centre staff, as to the aims, expectations and commitment needed for a successful activity session.
3. Participants should be willing to listen, ask questions and learn. Personal views are encouraged and should be expressed and considered. All participants should be valued and made to feel welcome.
4. Participants should understand that they are expected to help each other and act in a sociably acceptable manner, maintaining good self-control and behavior.
5. Participants should arrive for sessions at agreed times and dressed appropriately for the activity and should not dismiss themselves from the activity until centre staff have accounted for all group members and are satisfied that all equipment is safely stowed away.
6. Participants must care for the equipment with which they are supplied, using it or wearing it appropriately as instructed.
7. Participants should be able to trust the judgement of staff and not reject opportunities before they understand what is involved and have made an attempt at the activity.
8. For their own safety and the safety of others, participants should not interfere with or use activity equipment without appropriate supervision.
9. Participants should not interfere with the property of others or enter rooms being used by other groups unless authorised to do so by centre staff.
10. All group members to the centre receive the official welcome brief, copies of which are located in the filing drawers in the Staff Room.
